BUCKLED DOWN TO WORK.

The People, Aroused to the Importance of Securing the Railroad, Have Gone to Work in Earnest.

Some of the local hustlers decided to have a public rail road meeting Monday, and invited Hon. H. L. Underwood, of Middlesboro, to address the crowd. He very kindly consented to come. Mr. Underwood is a man of wide business experience, and has had much to do with promoting such enterprises as we are now after. At the meeting Monday, he was introduced by Capt. Herndon, who stated the object of the meeting, and put in some sledgehammer blows for the road.

Mr. Underwood started out by telling of a number of towns where they thought rail roads were "bound to come," but when the people refused to lend assistance the lines ran around them, and they were left in the woods. He said that rail roads were not inclined to come where they were not welcome, and that they would frequently build longer routes in order to reach points where the people were interested and felt friendly toward them. What the country, and especially Kentucky, needed was more rail roads to develop her vast resources and afford the farmer and producer better facilities to transport their products to market. No community is going to suffer from too many rail roads. Along the new route is a section of country that is dependent upon the blue grass region for its meat, corn, hay, and in fact all her market stuff. Nothing can be raised in that country except timber. As Garrard is the first blue grass county on the line, this country would naturally come here for their provisions, etc. The new road will put Garrard on a direct and short line to the coal fields, where the best coal in the south lies in abundance. This item in itself would save Garrard county people many dollars a year. He then spoke of the road being a trunk line from Chicago and St. Louis to the south and Atlantic seaboard. The "one hundred feet wide right of way" means a double tracked road. This would give a direct line for farmers to ship their grain and stock direct to Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis or to any city along the southern Atlantic seaboard. He called especial attention to this fact.

We regret very much that we can not reproduce his remarks in full, as they were certainly to the point and convincing. Mr. Underwood is in business at Middlesboro, and went to New York with the committee to see President Spencer when we thought the road would run to the Magic City. He is thoroughly posted on the matter, having had much experience in promoting such matters, and being thoroughly familiar with the mountains of Kentucky.

Capt. Herndon made some well-timed remarks, as did also Messrs. A. R. Denny and L. F. Hubble. The meeting had the effect of awakening the people to the importance of "going after" the road to win, and they are now doing so. Danville is on a still hunt for the road, and while they are not saying much they are sleeping with both eyes open and if this right of way is not handed over pretty soon, they will come mighty near knocking the persimmon.

The right of way through the county will cost in the neighborhood of twenty thousand dollars, some gentlemen familiar with the lands placing it at sixteen or seventeen thousand. The people are aroused to the importance of the matter, and by next issue we firmly believe we will be able to say the most of it has been subscribed.

We do not think it at all necessary for THE RECORD to repeat its oft published statements of the value the road will be to Garrard, as our readers are familiar therewith. The only trouble has been that some thought the road would not be built and did not care to waste time on it. Now that all doubt has been dispelled, we believe every citizen of the county will put his shoulder to the wheel and push the matter to a head. We have been prophesying with such accuracy of late, that we will venture to make another. It is this: It will not be six weeks after Garrard announces that she is ready to deliver the goods, before active preparations for construction of the road are begun. Set this down in your memorandum book and see if THE RECORD knows what it is talking about this time.

We do not feel it necessary to apologize to our readers for taking up so much space with rail road talk, as they are fully aware of the importance of securing the road. Our columns are open to anyone who wants to air his views on the subject. If we haven't said the right things in the right way, now is your chance to right the wrong.

J. Joseph has the most complete stock of gingham, taffetas and white goods ever shown in Lancaster. It will pay you to see them.

A good many have taken the "hint" we gave in last issue about paying up subscriptions, and we greatly appreciate their kindness. There are some though who let the words enter one ear and rush rapidly out the other.

Deputy U. S. Marshal, W. T. Short, was fired upon from ambush in the mountains. He was not hurt, and returned the fire. He's a Garrard county man, and of course can manage to take care of himself.

In McClure's Magazine for May, Ray Stannard Baker will tell the fairly romantic story of "The New Prosperity" that has burst like a miracle upon the world, and particularly upon the United States, within less than two years.

Candidates for matrimony, in a rubber-tire you only have to whisper in the ear of your girl your dream of love, hope, happiness and future prosperity. Try it and you will get there in great shape. Courtship riga specialty at Mason & Hamilton's Livery Stable, back of Court House.

Harrodsburg Democrat Sold.

The company organized at Harrodsburg has bought the Democrat of Mr. Spotswood. The company showed good sense in buying the established plant instead of attempting to build up a new paper. The latter is a job which succeeds about one time in fifty. Mr. Boswell will be the new editor.

Doubles Its Size.

The Danville Advocate, one of the best and most conservative papers in the state, is compelled to double up every Friday in order to print the vast amount of advertising matter it is receiving. The Record congratulates the management of the Advocate, and also the advertisers, who are sure to reap a tenfold reward on their investment.

Meeting With Great Success.

Prof. Wilson and Kennedy, of the Richmond School and Infirmary of Magnetic Healing and Suggestive Therapeutics, are meeting with much success in this city, and many have been greatly benefited by their treatment. Their offices are over Zimmer's restaurant, and many people call upon them daily. Read their advertisement on page 3rd.

Fine Place for Sale.

In this issue J. H. Otter announces that he will sell at auction, May 22nd, his fine residence on East Main street, in Danville, with all the ground attached. Read the advertisement. This is a splendid opportunity for some enterprising man to develop a section of a growing town by putting on the market a large number of fine building lots of the better class.

Two Married Men.

The Opera House was fairly well filled Tuesday night to witness the above performance. The show is an unusually good one, and keeps the audience in an uproar of laughter throughout the evening. It goes to show how many old cusses parade as saints while in the sight of their wives and home-folks and then go all the gait when an opportunity presents. If all such shams were exposed, there would not be enough men in the church choir to day to sing bass to the music.

Rumors of a Change.

It is rumored among railroad men that the L. & N., is thinking seriously of taking off the night trains and running them to Livingston, as heretofore, and running the day trains over this branch to Rowland. This is exactly what the committee that went to Louisville and got the night trains, wanted. If they will be run to connect both north and south at Rowland the company will soon see that it will be money to keep them. We have a good service now, but if the day run is put over here it will prove a much greater advantage to both public and company. We don't vouch for the truth of this rumor, its only hearsay.

Sparks' circus drew only a few people to town Friday, as the weather was too rainy. The people living in town turned out pretty well and gave the show a fair sized crowd. It is a good circus, but small.

It is to your interest to get my prices on all kind of work before going elsewhere. I have the best equipped shop and the most complete set of tools that you can find in any shop. J. B. Cox.

Notice.

I have a little unpaid school tax on 1899 books. If not paid by the 10th day of May levies will be made and property sold, as the law directs. Come and pay and save cost. E. W. Harris, Collector.

A Promising Lad.

In a little editorial last issue we spoke of Dewey tearing his pants, and referred to his further widening the "rent." Frank Humphrey, our devil, was setting it up, and put it "went." When asked about it, Frank said "Well I have heard so much about Dewey that I knowed he wouldn't have to rent breeches, cause he had 'em of his own. So I thought you was mistaken and set it like it order be, w-r-e-n-t."
